Honduras Marcala

From Marcala, La Paz, Honduras

Honduras is celebrated for producing some of the world's finest coffee, thanks to its diverse coffee-growing regions like Comayagua, Copan, El Paraíso, Ocotepeque, Opalaca, Montecillos, and Santa Barbara. Each region offers unique flavors influenced by its geography and climate.

A key classification system in Honduras is based on altitude: SHG (Strictly High Grown) coffee is cultivated above 4,429 feet, resulting in denser beans and a more desirable flavor profile due to slower maturation. In contrast, HG (High Grown) coffee is grown at slightly lower altitudes. Whether you're a coffee enthusiast or a newcomer, exploring Honduran coffee can lead to discovering exceptional flavors.
